Documents D1-D5 disclose non-contact/wireless transmission and/or electromagnetic induction coupling apparatuses, which uses electromagnetic field/wave to transfer electric power/electric energy and data/signal between the transmitter/primary and receiver/secondary remote from each other or separated by the gap . Data is frequency modulated onto the carrier. After demodulation electric power of the carrier wave is converted to act as a power supply. There is no disclosure that demodulated data is used or that can be used for control. Remaining documents D6 –D12 disclose similar configurations for non-contact transmission of power and data, but they don't use frequency modulation of data onto the carrier.

CLAIMS 1-52 – NOVELTY AND INVENTIVE STEP

All claims are novel because none of the documents discloses all feature of each claim. Therefore the subject matter of these claims is new and meets the requirements of Article 33(2) PCT with regard to novelty.

The claimed invention is not obvious in the light of any of the cited documents nor is it disclosed in any obvious combination of them. It is also considered that it would not be obvious to a person skilled in the art in the light of common general knowledge either by itself or in combination with any of these documents. Therefore the subject matter of these claims is not obvious and meets the requirements of Article 33(3) PCT with regard to inventive step.

CLAIMS 1-52 – INDUSTRIAL APPLICABILITY

Invention defined in claims 1-52 is industrially applicable.

Box No. VIII Certain observations on the international application

The following observations on the clarity of the claims, description, and drawings or on the question whether the claims are fully supported by the description, are made:

Claims 28 and 30 are not fully supported by the description because they omit the feature of IPT (inductive power transfer). This feature is present in all other independent claims (1, 14, 26, 32, 36, 37 and 52) and the specification read as whole also suggest that IPT is feature of the invention.
